

Pretty Tasty...

April 15th, 2010

... is the name of Nadia Stopnicer's business that creates treats so beautiful it wouldn't surprise me if you never actually got to find out what they tasted like. Her biscuits are stunning creations that my mum would give pride of place to in the kitchen cabinet (alongside a fondant Wallace & Gromit that's about 15 years old!) My mum is a habitual hoarder. Something I'm always nagging her about! But I think I'd have to let her off if she kept one of these beauties. Because they look like this:

After moving from London to a cottage in the Cambridgeshire countryside, Nadia started off just baking for friends. Many positive reactions, a food hygiene course and a Business Link planning programme later the business began in 2008.

Cakes too

Although primarily a biscuit-baker, Nadia also creates exquisite, eye-catching cakes:

Biscuit beauties

But I think my favourite creations are unlike any I have seen before. And it is because of the lack of these decorative biscuits in the UK that Nadia felt confident she had something new to offer with her biscuit business. After moving from Switzerland 15 years ago, Nadia found herself missing the traditional, aniseed biscuits sold at Christmas markets there. So much so that she started making them herself after finding a craftsman that could create intricate resin moulds (originally they were made in wooden moulds passed down through the family). The resulting biscuits look like perfect porcelain ornaments that, I believe, could sit proudly on any wedding table:

All awesome images courtesy of Nadia at Pretty Tasty

These biscuits cost £13.50 for a set in a keepsake tin, but differ in quantity so whereas you get 5 hearts for aniseed you can get 16 smaller star biscuits without spending a penny more. And if you're not a fan of aniseed you can opt for vanilla instead!

And here's a budget-busting tip for you... Nadia's iced biscuits can be personalised with your guests' names: a perfect way to have a favour double up as a place card!

♥ Debs

Vendor Details:

Website: Pretty Tasty
Email: info@prettytasty.co.uk
Phone: 07974 230450